How the rankings work

This index scores 106 cities across 58 countries — every city with at least three schools in the Best 300, the Challengers 300, or the Rising Stars 400. We publish two rankings side by side because two truths matter to families comparing cities: the depth of a city's school ecosystem, and the concentration of quality within it.

Depth of Excellence

Volume-weighted. Each Best 300 school counts three times, each Challenger twice, each Rising Star once. We blend in 30 percent of the city's top-five average score, then normalise so the leading city sits at 100. Rewards cities with a broad and deep bench of tracked schools.

Concentration of Quality

Quality-per-school. The score is the average overall score of the city's five highest-ranked schools — no volume adjustment. A city with three elite schools can beat a city with fifty average ones. The right lens for families shortlisting the very top of the international market.

What we track

Every school scored on our composite 0–100 ranking (academic outcomes, university placement, prestige, alumni network, facilities, transparency), grouped into three tiers: Best 300, Challengers 300 (ranks 301–600), and Rising Stars 400 (ranks 601–1000). Regulator verification signals (Ofsted, ISI, DfE, KHDA, ADEK, SPEA, NAPLAN) are surfaced where present.

Depth of Excellence

Volume-weighted. Rewards cities with many top-tier schools across the full ranking book.
